

Admiralty & Maritime

Overview

While Admiralty & Maritime law encompasses a wide range of legal matters, it is also an extremely specialized field. Businesses and individuals involved in seafaring and maritime-related industries therefore are best served in their legal matters by attorneys who are experienced in, and devote their practices to, this area of law. Munsch Hardt's Admiralty & Maritime attorneys collectively have more than 50 years of experience as practitioners in this field and dedicate their practices to this area.

Clients active in all aspects of the marine and energy-related fields turn to Munsch Hardt for advice and counsel, including dredging contractors and operators, offshore supply vessel operators, offshore drilling and well services companies, offshore staffing and manning providers and commercial diving operators. We also represent major and independent energy companies, oil and gas producers and operators, oilfield services companies, energy investors and pipeline owners and operators.

Providing comprehensive legal services, our Admiralty & Maritime practice helps clients negotiate and draft advantageous contracts, defend against litigation and other claims, ensure regulatory compliance, buy and sell marine assets and manage maritime risks. The wide spectrum of legal issues we handle includes:

- Personal injury and wrongful death claims, including claims arising under the Jones Act and Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA)

- Contract disputes, including claims and demands for defense and indemnification under maritime law
- Collisions, allisions and loss of station claims
- Cargo loss or damage claims
- International arbitrations

We are skilled in defending against maritime workers' personal injury claims, including those brought by seamen under the Jones Act and by longshoremen under the Longshore & Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA). This includes defense of:

- Seamen's claims for the unseaworthiness of the vessels, maritime negligence under the Jones Act, and claims for maintenance and cure benefits.
- Actions by longshoremen, who can claim generous benefits from their employers under the LHWCA, and also sue vessels under LHWCA §905(b).

Experience

Maritime Doctrine

Successfully presented a case to the Texas Supreme Court resulting in the adoption of the Search and Rescue Doctrine, and the application of this maritime doctrine in a manner requiring the reversal and rendering of a judgment. The client Munsch Hardt represented earlier had a substantial judgment entered against it when the client was represented by predecessor counsel.

Jones Act

Won dismissal of Jones Act claims for offshore exploration and drilling clients based upon lack of vessel status of deepwater floating gas production and drilling platform.

Maritime Litigation

Successfully defend offshore drilling company in litigation arising from fatal electrocution occurring aboard semi-submersible in territorial waters of Angola.

Maritime Doctrine

Prevailed in a case presented to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit resulting in the adoption of the Primary Duty Doctrine Defense. The application of this maritime doctrine allowed Munsch Hardt to maintain an extraordinarily minimal judgment of less than $10,000, which had earlier been awarded against our client by the trial court with respect to a wrongful death claim.

Maritime Statutory Amendments

Successfully marshaled through the Texas Legislature a Bill modifying the venue statutes so as to substantially limit the reliance upon a plaintiff's residence as a basis for venue. The statutory amendments significantly reduced the volume of litigation experienced by our clients engaged in the dredging industry particularly and the maritime industry generally.

Manufacturing Immigration Counsel

Represents a manufacturer and distributor of Personal Protective Equipment for the offshore and maritime industry in processing L-1A, L-1B, H-1Bs, E-2 Treaty Executives/Managers visa petitions.
