

Article

Differing Site Conditions: A Quick Primer on What Every Contractor Needs to Know by Mason Hester

05.04.18

Construction Executive

Shareholder Mason Hester recently published an article with Construction Executive on what contractors need to know on Differing Site Conditions (DSCs).

“One of many examples of a DSC can be where a contractor encounters unexpected underground rock – or maybe differing soil, water or utility piping,” writes Hester. “Examples of things generally not categorized as DSCs are extreme weather conditions, labor/equipment shortages, increased material costs or political/economic events.”

The full article can be accessed here.

Primary Contacts

Mason Hester

Houston

713.222.4036

mhester@munsch.com

Related Practices

Construction Litigation

Related Industries

Construction