Overview

Casey focuses her practice on a wide range of complex commercial disputes in a diverse mix of industries, including energy, personal injury, environmental, insurance, real estate, employment and products liability. No matter the subject matter, Casey brings the same level of attention and care to each of her cases. Her clients appreciate her prompt responses, efforts to exceed expectations and zealous and cost-efficient advocacy.

She has extensive experience in all stages of litigation in federal and state court, including discovery, motion practice, pretrial briefing, preparation and finalization of trial exhibits, direct and cross-examination of witnesses and preparation of opening and closing statements. She also counsels clients on drafting and finalizing internal policies and procedures to ensure compliance with applicable state and federal law.

Prior to joining Munsch Hardt, Casey worked for a national litigation firm in its Houston office. In her spare time, Casey enjoys traveling with her husband and visiting the park with her two rescue dogs Molson and Jameson.
